

LE CACHÉMIRIEN

Another meeting point

REFLECTIONS 15

A dictionary of Le Cachemirien's beloved words

Ouroboros

The ouroboros is the snake that bites
or swallows its tail.

This image represents,
in an animal form,
the circle of the eternal return.

A new beginning
coincides with an end
in a perpetual repetition.

Weave

Ovis

A natural white shawl in pure pashmina, hand spun and hand woven in Kashmir.
The curly effect is achieved by inserting regularly a small stick in the weave.
It takes six months to complete a shawl of one meter by two.

Colour

Ochre

Ochre is the colour of the earth.
In 1975, the Australian government transmitted the property deeds of a ranch used by the aborigines for breeding.
The prime minister poured yellow ochre on the chief's hands to confirm with a symbolic gesture the reconquering of his heritage.

Mythology

Orgyen

Geographically located in northeast Kashmir, the mythological kingdom of Orgyen is considered to be, by Tibetan Buddhists, the birthplace of Padmasambhava.

The precious master, Guru Rimpoche, entered the legend for being responsible of the Tibetans' conversion to Buddhism.

*“In the northwest of the the land of Orgyen,
You have attained in a lotus flower
The most sublime and most marvellous perfection”*

Photography "Occident", the west

Travel Orcha

"Send me love
that keeps the heart
in the fullness of peace"

-Rabindranath Tagore

Drawing "L'œil", the eye

A music:

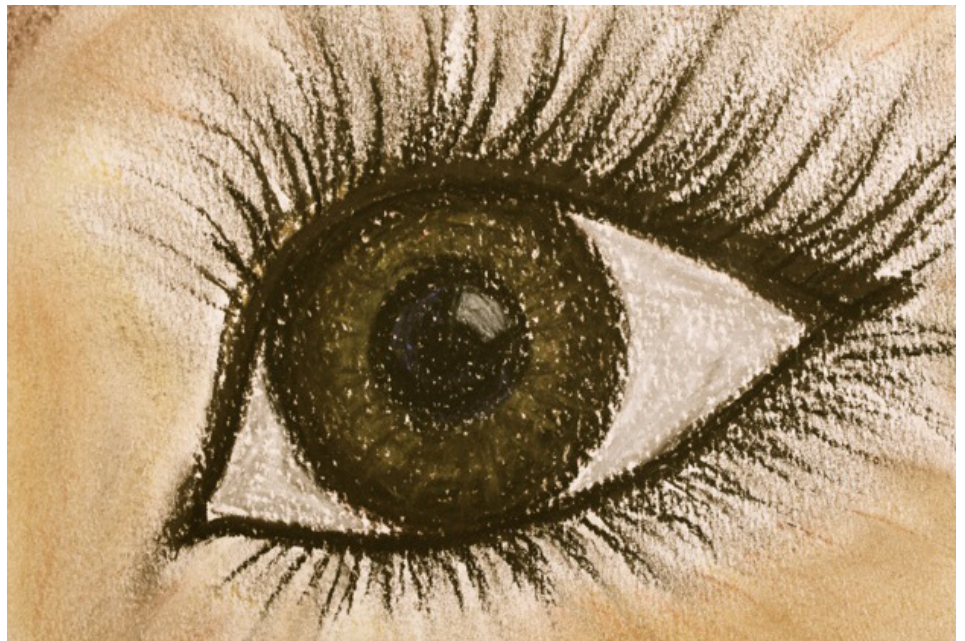

"Orient"
by Don Cherry

A book:

"Song offerings"
by Rabindranath Tagore

A film:

"Oliver Twist"
by David Lean

Dress "Oriana"

Reversible jacket in the colours of daybreak, made of hand spun and hand woven pure pashmina. The embroidery done by hand with silk thread is reversible too. One of a kind.